Monday, July 28. 1707.

From the Paris Gazette, dated July 29.

From the Camp at Alcarra, July 18.

THE 10th of this Month the Duke of Orleans march'd from the Camp of Vallovar to Fraga. The 11th he came and encamp'd here, to wait till the Bridge which he had order'd to be made over the Segra above Mequinenza was finish'd. The 14th he sent Order to M. d'Arenes to march the 15th in the Beginning of the Night with 30 Squadrons and 18 Battallions towards the Bridge of Segra, and his Royal Highness march'd at 10 a Clock at Night for the same Place with 24 Squadrons. He hop'd to surprise the Enemy posted at Tor de Segra, within half a League of Lerida, whither he could not reach till the 16th at Noon. But having Intelligence of the Duke of Orleans's passing the Segra, they decamp'd at 4 in the Morning, with so great Precipitation that 'twas impossible to overtake them. They march'd Day and Night towards Barcelona, having abandon'd all the Country on this side the Llobregat, where they might easily have subsisted, and retarded the Progress of the Army of the two Crowns. The Duke of Orleans came back to this Camp with the Troops to Day, after having taken a View of Lerida within Cannon-shot. He will march to morrow for Balaguer, a Town on the Segra above Lerida, where he will distribute the Troops into good Quarters of Refreshment, of which they have Need because of the excessive Heats.

From the Paris Gazette, dated July 30.

Paris, July 30. We have Letters from Toulon of the 19th Instant, which say the Duke of Savoy pass'd the Var the 11th of this Month, with an Army of 25000 Men, the Enemy's Fleet having advanc'd at the same Time towards Antibes to favour his Passage. He continued his March the 15th to attack that City. Men have been kept at work a long Time, to put it into a Condition of Defence. M. de St. Pater commands in it: M. Dillon is arriv'd there. The Avenues of the Harbour are defended by several Batteries, by large Ships and by Gallies well arm'd. A great Number of Troops more are drawing thither, and the 19th arriv'd at Cuers within 3 Leagues of that City 20 Battallions which are follow'd by several more, and by a great Number of Horse. The Marquis de Sully is likewise expected with some Battallions and Squadrons; he had not Troops enow to dispute the Passage of the Var, but observes the Enemy, and retires as they advance. A great Number of Deserters are come over, and all report, that the Piemontois are in a very bad Condition. The Enemy's Fleet is arriv'd at the Islands Hieres.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated August 2.

Paris, July 29. 'Tis advis'd from Riez in Provence the 20th, that the Enemy's Army encamp'd the 18th 2 Miles above Frejus, waiting for their Artillery and Baggage; that a Body of 3 or 4000 Germans were left before Antibes; that the Enemy's Fleet, except 4 or 5 Men of War, after having thrown about 200 Bombs into the Town with little Execution, sail'd to the Islands Hieres; and that the Army of the Allies was about to break up, to pass the Woods and Hills of St. Luc; but that 'twas hop'd our Troops which lye thereabouts, would barra's them in their March. The same Advices say likewise, that the 18th in the Morning the Marshal de Tesse pass'd by Rhiez with 26 or 27000 Men, and was to pass the River Verdon the next Day, to draw near to Toulon, to cover that City, (which 'tis pretended is furnish'd with a Year's Provisions,) from the Attempts of the Enemy. Letters from Court say the King receiv'd Advice by an extraordinary Courier Yesterday, that notwithstanding the Duke of Savoy and Prince Eugene march'd very hard with their Troops, 'twas hop'd the Marshal de Tesse would reach Toulon before them.

Paris, July 29. Letters from Provence of the 22d tell us, that the Enemy's Troops were that Day at Mui; but that their Fleet was come to the Islands Hieres. 'Tis given out that Toulon is so well provided for Defence, that we need not be under any Apprehension for it. The Garrison is reforc'd to 13 Battallions of regular Troops; and there is in the Place 10000 Men, of regular Troops, Seamen, and Militia.

Paris, July 29. The last Advices from Provence are of the 22d. The Duke of Savoy is on the March for Toulon. He has left several hundred Men before Antibes, to hinder the Garrison from making Excursions and maintain the Communication with Piemont, and with the rest of his Army is marching for Toulon. Deputies from the Province have waited on him in his Camp to agree upon Contribution, but he remitted it, telling them he was come only to restore them to Liberty. He has likewise given publick Warning to the Inhabitants to keep quietly in their Dwellings, declaring that no Harm shall be done to those that obey his Order, but that such as act otherwise shall be punish'd with military Execution. This Manner of proceeding is dislike'd by our Court, who had much rather he would incense the People by ravaging the Country. The Gros of his Army has already pass'd the Mui and is advanc'd near Luc, where he waits for his Artillery and Baggage. M. de Tesse is suppos'd to have pass'd the Verdon. There is some Hope that the Troops which are posted in the Woods and Defilez of Luc, may be able to stop the Enemy's Army, and give Time to M. de Tesse to get before them to Toulon. In the mean time 'tis certain he has not yet drawn together all the Troops that are to compose his Army; and 'tis whisper'd that some Misunderstanding between him and M. de Medavi occasion'd the Delay in drawing them together. There is a considerable Garrison in Toulon, without reckoning the Seamen and Burghers; and they tell us the Place is well provided with all Necessaries, and in a Condition to hold out a long and vigorous Siege; notwithstanding which it has been thought fit to remove to Marseilles the Cannon and Stores of the Men of War that would have been superfluous at Toulon. A Letter from Luc, says the Duke of Savoy took up his Quarter there the 20th, and had absolutely refus'd to take Contribution of the Country, telling those who waited on him to offer it that he was not come to oppress but to relieve them, and recover their former Liberty for them; with which Generosity the People are charm'd: That a great Number of Cannon are carried from Toulon to Marseilles, and Cables to the Value of 400000 Crowns. And in a Postscript 'tis advis'd, that Admiral Shovel being arriv'd at the Islands Hieres, has landed at Hieres, which is on the main Land, 6000 Men with Stores of Ammunition.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated August 2.

Shafhusen, July 21. 'Tis advis'd from Provence, that the Archives of Toulon, Marseilles, and Aix, were remov'd to Avignon, and that the Inhabitants had sent their best Effects thither.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated August 2.

Before in Alsace, July 20. This Morning arriv'd here here a Detachment of 16 Battallions and 4 Regiments of Horse from the Army of the Marshal de Villars. Above 200 Waggon are provided to carry them with all Expedition to Auffonne, whence they will be sent in Boats down the Saone and the Rhone to Dauphine, Provence, or Languedoc.

Lions, July 24. All the Waggon, Carts, and Horses hereabouts, are taken up to carry Ammunition to Languedoc. The Enemy have forc'd the Intrenchments on the Var, put to Flight our Troops that were there, block'd up Antibes, and are in full March with their Army for Toulon. We are in Apprehension, that the Marshal de Tefse's Army will be oblig'd to pass the Rhone; for should they post themselves at Toulon or Marseilles, their Provisions might be cut off.

Hague, August 2. The 31st past an Englishman arriv'd with Letters from Sir Cloudfly Shovel: His Passport is dated the 16th from Biot between Antibes and Frejus 3 Leagues from St. Laurens, whence he reports the Army march'd the 15th, and advanc'd to Biot. He brings an Account, that Sir Cloudfly was fail'd for the Islands Hieres, and had assur'd the Duke of Savoy and Prince Eugene, that having caus'd the Coast to be sound'd, he would undertake to land within 3 Miles of the Place where they should raise their Batteries against Toulon 100 twenty four Pounders, 72000 Bullets for them, and thirty odd thousand Bombs. 'Tis reckon'd there are in Toulon, 12 first-Rate Men of War, and 28 second-Rates.
